Solteature's shareholders inject additional capital

Negotiations with new strategic partners at advanced stage

Berlin, 27 February 2012. Solteature, a global technology leader in CIGS thin-film technology acknowledged today that it is in negotiations with several Asian companies looking for a strategic partnership with Solteature. Solteature's CEO and founder Dr. Nikolaus Meyer said "The discussions are at an advanced stage with a number of parties and we are very confident about closing a deal soon. Our attraction comes from our market leading technology that is continuously progressing and improved in our Berlin production. This technology, combined with our skilled and experienced employees, differentiates us and provides a unique platform for large scale low-cost commercial production". Solteature's shareholders have today injected additional capital into the company and are committed to supporting the company.
